

This page intentionally contains nothing more than what was written on it, which of course is the very sentence you are reading right now, in order to give you the illusion of a page that was intentionally left blank, which would be a lie if that remark were written on it, just like the Epimenides paradox, in which Epimenides, being a Cretan, says that all Cretans are liars, which would make Epimenidas a liar as well, thus contradicting his own proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, which confirms the proposition, so he is a liar, thus falsifying the proposition, so he speaks the truth, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which makes the proposition untrue, hence he is not lying and then his proposition is true, so he indeed is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar, hence the proposition must be true, so he is a liar, which would falsify the proposition, so he is not a liar and therefore DAMN, this bloody sentence entirely fills this intentionally blank and empty page.

This page was intended to be blank,
but then you might think that I am stupid
and I do not allow you to have such bad thoughts.

Next page is intentionally left blank.

Last page was intentionally left blank.

Thank you for having read this very important document.

* * * * *

This document has an appendix,
so this is not yet the last page.

Neither is this.

Nor this.

Appendix

Whenever you think:

"At least somebody could do something."

you might consider

YOU

too are somebody.

A person's chance of drowning dramatically increases with the number of bystanders who are only watching.